
Freedom to operate search

refers to searches on intellectual property rights databases (such as patent databases) aimed at determining whether a product's commercialisation could infringe third parties' rights.