
BREXIT: The finalised Withdrawal Agreement

The official draft Agreement on the withdrawal of the UK from the EU was released last week.

Regarding intellectual property (IP), as already foreseen in the no-deal scenario, EU IP rights will continue to be protected in the UK after Brexit.

Therefore, holders of IP rights which have been registered or granted before the end of the transition period will become the holder of a comparable UK right.

Find further information and read the Withdrawal Agreement here. The provisions regarding IP rights are covered under Title IV (Articles 54 to 61).
